

Nikolaos Sariannidis is a Professor at the Department of Accounting and Finance, University of Western Macedonia, (subject area “Quantitative Methods in Accounting and Finance”). He graduated the Department of Statistics and Actuarial Science, University of Piraeus (1994), and holds an MSc degree in Investment Analysis, University of Stirling (U.K., 1998). In 2007, he was awarded a PhD degree by the Department of International Economic Relations and Development, Democritus University of Thrace, for his PhD Thesis entitled “Analysis and Evaluation of ATHEX Financial Derivatives: The Factor of Volatility”.

He was Head of the Department of Accounting and Finance (2013-2017), Vice-Rector for Financial Planning and Development, TEI of Western Macedonia (2018-2019) and Vice-Rector for Academic Affairs, University of Western Macedonia(2019-....).

His scientific and research work is mainly focused on applications of econometric methods to capital markets and economic development. He has published more than 60 original articles in internationally acclaimed scientific journals and conference proceedings, forty one (41) of which are indexed in the SCOPUS bibliographic database.